

Busy Teacher Resources

January 3, 2005

Fun with Social Sciences

FFFBI INTERNATIONAL MISSIONS presented in association with  NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

FFFBI Goes Global

WASHINGTON — In typical FFFBI style, ill-equipped animal agents are being dispatched to countries about which they know squat. In some cases, less than squat. With just a meager travel budget and a disorganized dossier of secret documents, they'll try to thwart Skip Intro's Cyber-Toothed Tigers, CRUST, and the Sandwich Faced Daddy's Boys. Maybe even those stoats, ferrets, and mink from the so-called "Axis of Weasels."

Deputy Director
Napoleon

Only one thing is certain. They're going to need all the help they can get.

Students ages 8-13 go on a series of imaginative online missions designed to increase their geographical knowledge and understanding of foreign cultures.

<http://www.fffbi.com/nationalgeographic>

Smithsonian Education
The gateway to Smithsonian educational resources

For students ages 6-12, the web site has been updated to include interactive activities, homework help, and games for all disciplines from art to history to science to space. Overall the site contains resources from 18 Smithsonian museums, the National Zoo, and the Smithsonian's many research centers.

<http://www.smithsonianeducation.org>