

Busy Teacher Resources

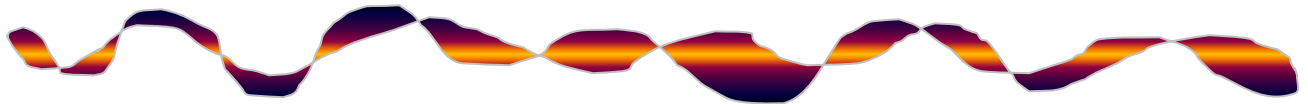

January 30, 2006

FEBRUARY—Black History Month

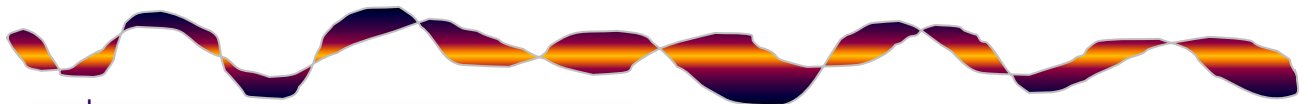

From Slavery to Civil Rights: A Timeline of African-American History

<http://memory.loc.gov/learn/features/civilrights/flash.html>

*To stories of success against the odds,
of achievement in the face of adversity,
and in all cases. . .
to stories of inspiration*

<http://www.thehistorymakers.com/>

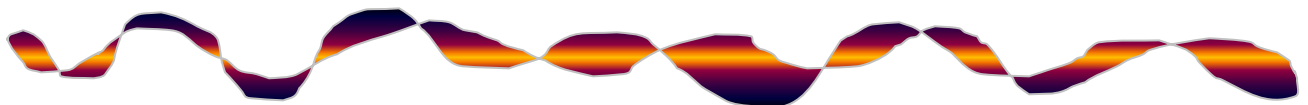

Teaching with Historic Places

African American History

To celebrate African American History, Teaching with Historic Places is featuring on the Web the following complete lesson plans that consider important aspects of African American history. (Created by National Park Service interpreters, preservation professionals, and educators.)

<http://www.cr.nps.gov/NR/twhp/feb00.htm>

Classroom Ideas: The Underground Railroad affords many educational opportunities. The activities presented here, especially the interactive journey, offer readers an emotional as well as historical experience regarding slavery. The Classroom Ideas are tailored to various age groups.

<http://www.nationalgeographic.com/railroad/>